

Media Advisory

Expert panel to discuss 21st century advocacy challenges and opportunities: Will greater participation by women make a difference?

Washington, D.C. – May 3, 2013 –The disproportionate impact that policy has on the nation's 74 million midlife and older women makes it critical that our political systems work. OWL's annual Mother's Day Report – In the Arena: How Women and Girls Change the World -- is a look at how new communications tools have the potential to engage more women in the public square.

- What: Briefing on OWL's Mother's Day Report –
In the Arena: How Women and Girls Change the World
- When: Wednesday, May 8
3:00 – 4:30 p.m.
- Where: National Press Club, 529 14th St. N.W. , Washington, D.C.

Panelists:

- Daniella Levine, OWL Vice President, Facilitator
- Niki Jagpal, Research and Policy Director, National Center for Responsive Philanthropy
- Celinda Lake, President, Lake Research Partners
- Ann Lewis, Former White House Communications Director
- Clarine Nardi Riddle, Co-Founder, No Labels
- Lida Rodriguez-Taseff, Partner, Duane Morris LLP
- Nancy Tate, Executive Director, League of Women Voters

For more information or to RSVP, contact:

Pat Lewis
plewis@owl-national.org